

Bringing Light To Darkness

By Staff Writer

ART

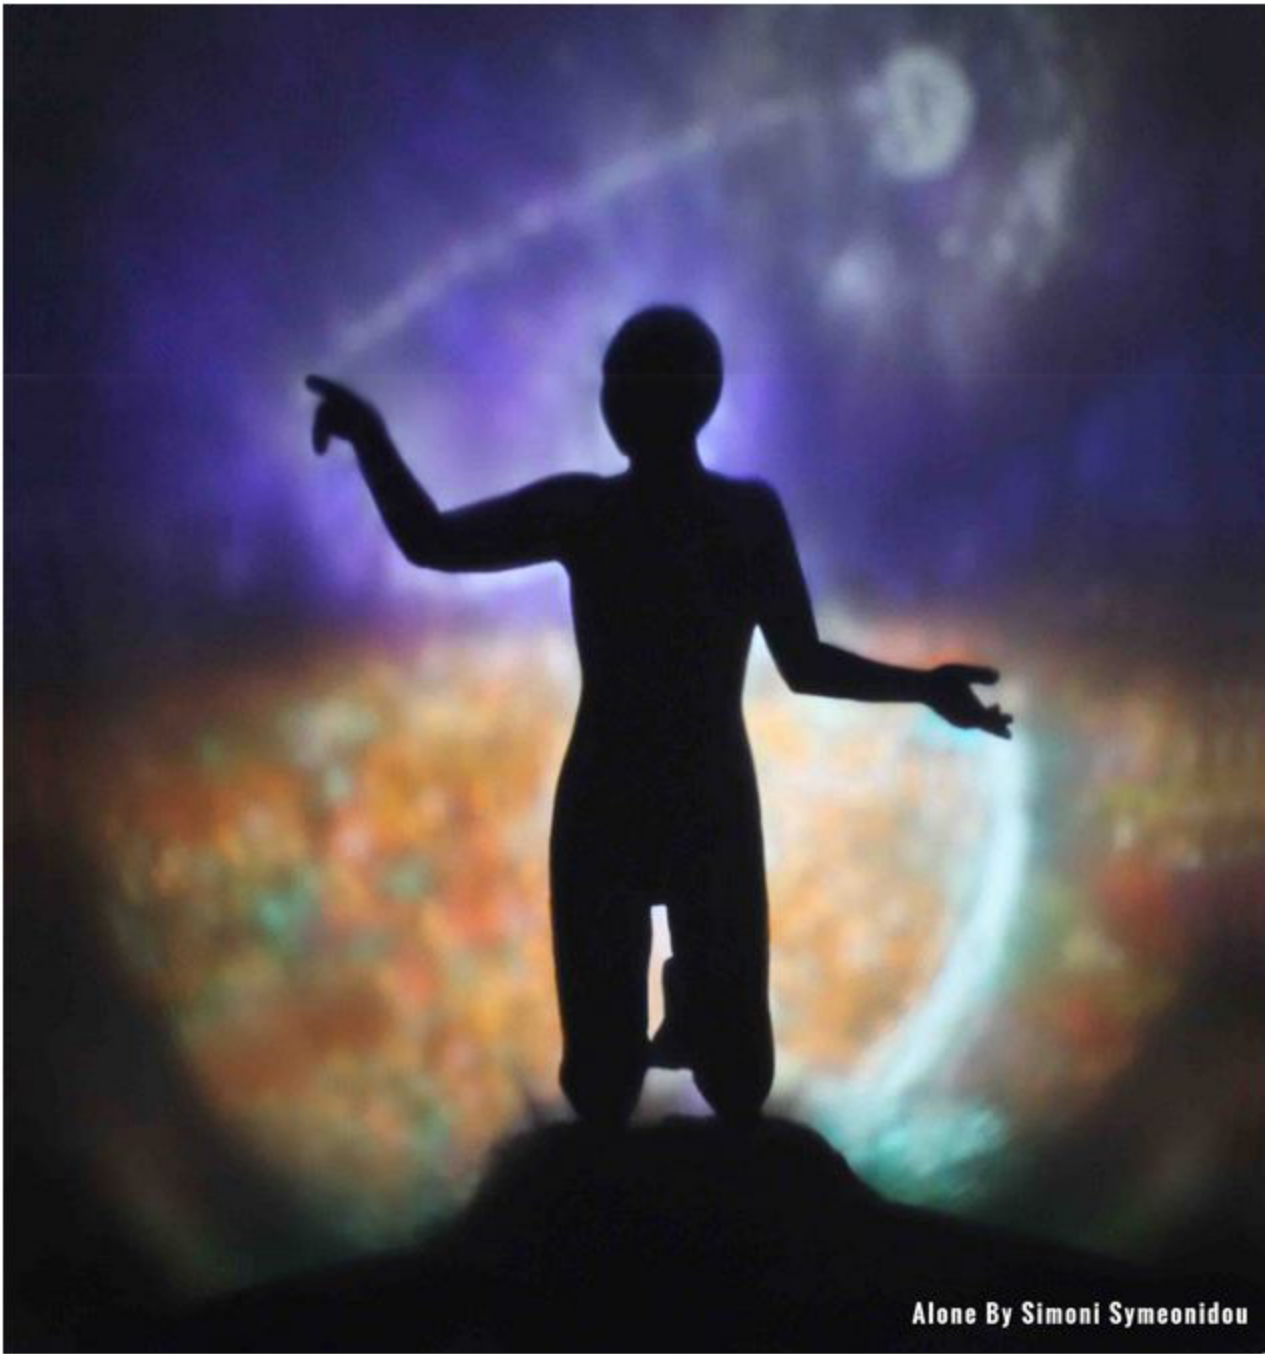

May 14, 2018

Simoni Symeonidou, is a multidisciplinary artist best known for her unique and imaginative shadow sculptures. Born in Toronto, Canada and raised in Nicosia, Cyprus where she is currently based. Her work was exhibited for the first time in the region by the Art Cocoon gallery at World Art Dubai this year. Simoni's artwork revolves around the human figure, exploring the emotional, and existential concerns of the individual, within our society.

"I consider my work to be anthropocentric and through my art I comment on the fact that things are not always what they seem to be." says Symeoniduo "I wish to create an experience for the viewer placing them co-existing with the works within the space, she adds.

Four Moons(pictured above), is a sculpture that portrays how people can get lost in their despair and forget how to appreciate the beauty around them. This encourages viewers to look for the positives in a seemingly negative situation.

'Alone', shows the audience how negatively perceived experiences such as loneliness can be used creatively, bringing in a sense of optimism.

This piece consists of a light, a sculpture made of plaster and a piece of hand-painted glass which creates the colors around the figure. The final result is a "painting-like" projected image made of colorful light and shadow.

For further info on pricing or to view Simoni Symeonidou's artwork contact www.theartcocoon.com

LATEST

SURPRISE ME

Week

Month

Worlds First AI Composed Theme Tune
Ode to Dubai

Pepsi Co And Emirates Foundation Launch
Art Of Zayed Competition
Open to musicians, poets and artists. Top 3 entries will receive Dh10,000 each

Design Fonts For 2018
The trendiest fonts this year

Cinema Akil X Alserkal Avenue
Ramadan Film Programme

Museum Of The Future
A brief look at yet another architectural marvel